Future Operation of Alondra Park May Fall On Taxpayers

Although there is grave possibility that the future operation of Alondra park and some 17 other Los Angeles county parks eventually must be maintained through creation of an assessment district, Alondra park will continue to be developed and landscaped by the county forestry department this year.

This was learned today at the Hall of Records, when it became known that the supervisors are considering a move to effect economies by declining to set up funds. The legislative bill under which Alondra Park would have received substantial aid did not pass, but the park and the property owners within the assessment district will be aided, it was learned.

Construction of the golf course today is between 60 and 70 per cent completed, according to J. R.

Wimmer of the county forestry department. It is expected to be virtually graded this fall, and grass will be sown and allowed to get a good start until next spring or summer before playing is allowed upon the course.

Between 6000 and 7000 feet of water main have been installed, according to Wimmer, and a row of trees planted around the 319-acre recreational tract. Three wells have been sunk on the park land to provide water for the trees and shrubbery that has been planted. Abundant water is present and assured for the grass that is to be planted later.

Commenting upon the county's 18 small parks, Chairman John R. Quinn of the board of supervisors said recently:

"I am afraid we must drop the cost of maintaining these parks from the general budget. If the neighborhood which uses them wants to assume the maintenance load, which totals about $45,000 annually, they probably will remain open."

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR J. E. FRANZEN

Funeral services were held at Stone & Myers chapel, Tuesday, July 18, for John E. Franzen, who passed away July 15 at 335 Rimpau avenue, Los Angeles, after a long illness. Rev. Elliott of Lomita officiated and interment was made at Inglewood. Mr. Franzen leaves a widow, Mrs. M. C. Franzen, residing in Lomita.

Nation's Voice Range Is Extended to Reach the Canal Zone and Panama

Right: Overseas switchboard at the Miami telephone office, handling service to the Bahamas and Central and South American points. Below: Horizontal rhombic antennas near Miami. They point toward the countries to which service is given.

SCENES AT FLORIDA RADIO TELEPHONE STATIONS
Above: Horizontal rhombic radio telephone transmitting antennas at Opa Locka, near Miami. Left: Radio telephone receivers at Hialeah. The American Telephone and Telegraph Company opened radio telephone service through these Florida transmitting and receiving stations last December to the Bahama Islands, Colombia, and Venezuela, last February to Panama and the Canal Zone, and to Costa Rica in March.

The Panama Canal Zone became the second United States Possession to be linked by telephone directly with the mother country when radio telephone service was opened between the United States and the Canal Zone, and the United States and the Republic of Panama, last February.

Service to the Hawaiian Islands had been opened more than a year before, through radio telephone transmitting and receiving stations on the Pacific coast.

Voice connection between this country and the Central American republic and the neighboring Canal Zone is established through short wave radio telephone transmitting and receiving stations. Rhombic transmitting and receiving antennas point toward the countries to which service is given.

The transmitting station is at Opa Locka, about ten miles outside of Miami, and the receiving station is at Hialeah, about five miles from that city. The stations are connected with the rest of the Bell System by land lines, and service to the Central American points is available to all Bell and Bell-connecting telephones in the United States, Canada, Cuba, and Mexico.

Many notables participated in the ceremonies incident to the opening of the service. At Washington, D. C., those who spoke over the new circuit included Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson; Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams; Sr. Don Ricardo Alfaro, Minister from Panama; Assistant Secretary of the Navy Frederick H. Payne; Major-Gen. J. J. Carr, Chief Signal Officer, U. S. A.; Capt. Stanford C. Hooper, Director of Naval Communications, U. S. N.; and W. G. Thompson, American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

In the offices of the Panama Telephone Company, in Panama City, the distinguished individuals who participated in the historic conversations by wireless telephone included Sr. Don Juan D. Arosemena, Secretary of Foreign Affairs of the Republic of Panama; Sr. Don Juan Antonio Jimenez, Minister of Government and Justice; Harold D. Finley, Chargé d'Affaires; Col. Julian L. Schley, Governor of the Canal Zone; Major-Gen. Preston Brown, Commanding U. S. Military Forces in the Canal Zone; Admiral Noble E. Irwin, Commandant 15th Naval District; and Commander Newton L. Nichols, District Communication Officer, U. S. N.

The radio telephone stations near

Miami are the most recent of the communication stations through which transoceanic telephone service is maintained. Other equipment for carrying on overseas telephone conversations is located in Maine, New York, New Jersey and California.

The radio telephone transmitting and receiving stations in Florida were first put in operation in December of 1932, when service was established between this country and Colombia and Venezuela in South America, and with Nassau in the Bahama Islands.

Venezuela and Colombia are the sixth and seventh South American republics with which North America now has telephonic connection, since service has been in operation to Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Peru and Uruguay. The Bahamas are the first of the islands of the Caribbean to which radio telephone service is extended, the circuits between this country and Cuba being in deep sea cables. And Panama and the Canal Zone are the first in Central America.

Service has also been extended to Costa Rica, which thus becomes the second Central American republic to be linked by voice with North America.

Gardena Tract Is Offered To Cal. Land Chest

One Hundred Acres to Be Plotted Into Small Farm Homes

Offer of 100 acres of land near Gardena has been made the California Land Chest. It was stated today by William B. Courtney of Reseda, one of the directors. The California Land Chest was incorporated last week as a non-profit organization, succeeding the Los Angeles Land Chest, but wider in scope.

The Gardena land is one of several plots in the county which is contemplated for development, according to Courtney. The other land is located near Reseda, in San Fernando valley, and near San Diego. Courtney stated that a meeting would be held soon in Gardena, at which time persons interested would be able to learn of the land chest plans.

It is the hope of the corporation's directors to obtain Reconstruction Finance Corporation funds, according to Courtney. The land would be purchased by the chest, with the R. F. C. funds, and then divided up into plots and sold to home seekers at a low price. The chest would lay out each plot, and a certain amount of it would have to be planted to vegetables and other garden truck, the purpose being to have the land support the tenant, as far as possible. Provision would be made for keeping chickens or rabbits, and possibly a goat, and for raising the feed for these.

Local Tire Dealers Discuss Trade Code At Meeting This Noon

Torrance retail tire dealers, comprising the local chapter of the Harbor District Rubber Club, met this noon at Earl's Cafe to discuss provisions of a proposed fair trade code, as provided under the National Industrial Recovery Act. Eight local tire firms were represented at the meeting, which was addressed by Erle B. Smith, secretary-manager of the Harbor District Rubber Club.

CUT DOWN ROAD APPROPRIATIONS

The state highway commission is faced with the simple task of paring down local applications for the inclusion of $75,000,000 of road projects to $16,000,000—the amount of federal road funds to be available to the state under the national public works program.

Coming to Torrance Sunday and Monday

Elissa Landi, Ernest Truex and Marjorie Rambeau have the featured roles in "The Warrior's Husband," Jesse L. Lasky's second production under the banner of Fox Film.
